ded," Mitra added.

Companies are becoming more aggressive as they have faced challenging situations due to abrupt exit of key personnel — this can be severely debilitating to an organisation and also lead to leaking of confidential business plans and information.

TOETHELINE

The primary objective is also FILE PHOTO to send out a strict message to existing employees that any such behaviotolerated. "That is largely the principal objective of the establishment's actions against a breach by an executive as well as of contractual stipulations," said Prakash of Khaitan & Co. "Organisations would not want any compromise on their stance against breach of employment obligations at (any) level, and especially (not) at the senior or seniormost levels across functions." So, companies attempt to ensure employees are mindful he said. of the potential implications that a breach on their part route when absolutely nee- may entail, he added.

"The specificity of mentioning what constitutes 'competing' companies is now followed to a fault, with the list being made exhaustive to include tier-II companies as well, besides direct competition," said R Suresh, managing director, Insist Consul-

Lawyers said it is becoming increasingly common practice among companies — not just in IT, but other sectors such as pharma, financial services and manufacturing to send out legal notices to new employers, intimating ur will not be them when any senior emplovee has not adhered to a contract.

> Earlier, such moves by personnel would have been ignored more often than not.

A senior counsel at a leading Mumbai-based conglomerate said boards usually avoid legally challenging or threatening executives, as it hurts company repute. "So, legal threats are hardly ever used. Unless there has been some serious charge or major evidence of (someone) breaking some confidentiality aspect of services or products, boards discourage legal action,'

Small Finance Banks also Doing Brisk Business

"Credit growth has been increasing as all segments are doing well, except large manufacturing," said Madan Sabnavis, economist, Bank of Baroda. "I would expect this to be higher for working capital purposes. With the economy doing well, there is fairly broadbased demand for credit."

> Bank credit expanded 11.4% so far in FY24 and deposits rose 9%, excluding the impact of the merger of HDFC with HDFC Bank. The RBI last month raised the fiscal-year economic growth forecast by 50 basis points to 7%.

One basis point is a hundredth of a percentage point. The high credit growth came at a time when lending rates reached the peak following a 250-basis-point rise in the policy repo rate between May 2022 and February 2023. From May 2022 to October 2023, the weighted average lending rate on fresh rupee loans increased nearly 2 percentage points, including an increase of 18 basis points since April 2023, the RBI said.

"Interest rate is not a limiting factor as business is doing well. This was observed in the past too. At the retail level, the quest to spend has led to borrowing for consumption purposes," Sabnavis said.

L&T Finance, which has been transforming itself into a retail-focused lender from one that lent to big companies, said its retail loans are estimated to have risen 31% to ₹74,750 crore.

Even the small finance banks are doing brisk busi-
